STATE WORKER ADMITS TAKING TWO SALARIES

Liquor Control Department To Bear Brunt Of Senate "Graft" Inquiry

W. V. ARCHER QUESTIONED

Davey Makes Plans For Own Investigation

COLUMBUS, Dec. 29—(UP)—The senate committee investigating alleged "legal graft" in Ohio departments planned to call additional employees of the state liquor department today after a liquor agency operator admitted he had illegally drawn more than $12,300 in state funds during the last two years.

Another senate committee, spurred on by reports of increasing unemployment and rapidly diminishing relief funds, was to resume consideration of the house-approved $12,000,000 poor aid program for 1938.

Both committees met yesterday while the house remained in recess, awaiting definite senate action before planning to return to work.

The senate committee before the investigating committee last night was Willard V. Archer, operator of a state liquor agency in Belle Valley, Noble county.

Inspector and Operator

Under questioning by former State Senator James Metzbaum, special committee counsel, Archer admitted he had been on the liquor department's payroll as an inspector while operating the agency.

Asked by Metzbaum "why you have a right to violate the law" by holding both jobs at once, Archer quietly replied:

"I have no answer to make." Archer said he had written his (Continued on Page Ten)

BRITISH REJECT JAPAN'S STORY OF SHIP ATTACK

TOKYO, Dec. 29—(UP)—Great Britain refuses to accept the Japanese army's explanation of an artillery attack on the gunboat Ladybird in the Yangtze river, J. I. Dodds, counselor of the British embassy, informed the foreign office today.

The army's explanation was issued as a separate statement through the foreign office, and was not included in a Japanese government note handed to the British embassy yesterday.

Nevertheless, the note was based on information supplied the government by the army and for this reason there was some belief that Great Britain might reject the note and make new representations.

As the Panay Sank After Being Bombed By Japanese

Pictures of Attack on Gunboat Panay Cause Women in Audience to Gasp

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 29—(UP)—News reel pictures of the attack on the U. S. Gunboat Panay by Japanese fliers, showing American navy men fighting for their lives and falling wounded in battle, were shown to the public for the first time today in Los Angeles theatres.

The pictures provoked gasps of horror from the few women spectators when they were first shown last night to a group of 100 news-

OPTION CLAIMED ON FULL WHEAT CROP IN CANADA

LONDON, Dec. 29—(UP)—The Daily Herald, organ of the Labor party, asserted today that the government had obtained an option on the entire Canadian wheat crop, to be taken up if necessary to ensure the country's food supply in event of war. The report was not confirmed.

The Canadian high commissioner's office and the Canadian wheat board, discussing the report, said that they knew of no such option. They suggested that an option might have been discussed in British government circles but not yet approved.

The newspaper reported that the option was arranged by the board of trade and Sir Thomas Inskip, minister for defense co-ordination, after secret negotiations extending for months past.

Should the option be taken up, it was asserted, it would cost the government $500,000,000 in addition to $25,000,000 paid for the option.

PEDESTRIAN HIT AUGUST 20 SEEKS $20,000 DAMAGE

Suit for $20,000, based on an auto-pedestrian accident on Route 56, at Pherson, last Aug. 20, was filed in Common Pleas court Wednesday.

The suit was filed by Hobart Hartley, Circleville, father and next friend of Richard H. Hartley, 18, against Bernard Osterhage, 727 Grandview avenue, Lancaster. The petition says the youth suffered permanent injuries when struck by an auto owned and operated by Mr. Osterhage.

It is alleged the defendant was driving in excess of 45 miles an hour, that he failed to operate the auto in such a way that it could be stopped within an assured clear distance ahead, and failed to sound a warning of his approach.

paper reporters and employees of Fox-Movietone company.

The films were taken by Eric Mayell, cameraman aboard the Panay, and were brought to the United States yesterday aboard the China Clipper.

A more complete news reel record of the Panay incident, taken by Norman Alley, cameraman for Universal Newsreel company, was enroute East on a chartered United Airlines plane. The plane was grounded for the night at Cheyenne, Wyo., by bad weather and was to take off early today for Washington. Alley's films were to be shown to state department officials and possibly to President Roosevelt.

The Fox-Movietone reel did not show the Japanese planes but it showed American bluejackets firing machine guns at their attackers. Gunners were seen standing at their post, oblivious to those who fell wounded beside them; a young naval officer staggered

GOV. DAVEY AND EX-OFFICIAL MAY GIVE TESTIMONY

COLUMBUS, Dec. 29—(UP)—Invitations to testify before the special pardon and parole grand jury here next week were extended to Governor Martin L. Davey and former Governor George White by Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy.

Gov. Davey is to be asked about a pardon he granted recently to Kevin V. Painter, former Cleveland banker. White is to be questioned about the parole of Roy "Happy" Marino, Youngstown gangster who was slain last August and who was once convicted of bank robbery.

A subpoena has been issued for Painter, who was pardoned after illness made necessary his removal from Ohio penitentiary to a hospital.

Among others expected to be summoned before the grand jury is David Ladd Rockwell of Kent, state fire marshal.

Attorney General Duffy said he would not grant Gov. Davey's request that his testimony before the grand jury be made public.

The grand jury will resume its work Monday. It visited Mansfield reformatory yesterday and was to visit Marysville woman's reformatory today. Later it will inspect London prison farm.

FAILURE TO STOP AFTER WRECK COSTS MOTORIST

Mrs. Pearrill Ater, of near New Holland, was fined $25 and costs in H. O. Eveland's justice of peace court Tuesday on a charge of failure to stop after an auto accident. The charge was filed by Murray V. Arledge, of near Derby. Mrs. Ater provided bond to pay her account.

She was charged with failure to stop after the car she was driving was involved in a collision with an auto driven by L. Von Arledge on Route 277 Christmas day.

along the Panay deck giving orders on the loading of wounded into launches, the officer himself being so badly wounded that he had to lean against a gun for support.

There were scenes of men swimming from the Panay to shore after the losing fight; of the survivors hiding in reeds on the banks of the Yangtze river while the planes continued to bomb the vicinity; of a well-dressed man who abandoned his place of safety on the bank to crawl to the side of a dying man who wanted someone to hold his hand.

The camera followed the survivors as they walked into a Chinese village seeking aid, and as they arrived later in Shanghai.

A few noteworthy points of the news reel were the lack of confusion aboard the boat during the fight; the American flag flying prominently from one of the three Standard Oil company tankers that went down with the Panay; the fair weather at the time of the attack which suggested that the Japanese fliers must have been able to identify the boats as American.

The Panay's flag was not visible in the pictures. Scenes taken aboard the boat were of sections where the flag was not flying, and those taken from shore after the Panay was abandoned were too remote to show anything as small as a flag.

LICENSING MAY FORCE DISPUTE IN WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29—(UP)—A source close to the administration reported today that President Roosevelt had expressed approval of federal licensing of interstate corporations but had encountered strong opposition from his cabinet to such a method of curbing monopolies.

The development emphasized a sharp split in administration ranks over the weapons to be used in a broad campaign against monopoly, which Mr. Roosevelt is expected to inaugurate at the regular session of congress.

The President brought up the federal licensing bill sponsored by Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney, D. Wyo., and Sen. William E. Borah, R. Ia., at a recent cabinet meeting.

"I am for the principle," he was quoted as saying, "but I don't think it goes far enough."

CHINESE TROOPS CLAIM CAPTURE OF 16 COUNTIES

SHANGHAI, Dec. 29—(UP)—Chinese troops have recaptured 16 counties in Shansi province as the result of removal of Japanese troops for a drive on Tsingtao, Chinese sources said today.

It was asserted that a big battle was being waged in the Wutshan mountains, just inside the Great Wall in northeastern Shansi province, with Chinese troops apparently on the offensive, trying to cut the dangerously long line of Japanese communications.

Chinese said that Gen. Yen Hsi-Shan, pacification commissioner of Shansi and Suiyuan provinces, was co-operating closely with Gen. Chu Teh, "Red Napoleon," who commands the eighth route army, the former Chinese Communist army, in operations against the Japanese.

An additional 26 Americans were expected to leave Tsingtao today in commercial ships, leaving 159 Americans there and 13 in the country near there. Consular authorities understood that there were 11 Americans in the Tsinan area. Nothing was known of their fate.

The United Press correspondent at Tsingtao reported all quiet there. He said that there was no fighting at present in the area and that motor bus service to the interior had been restored. A local vigilante organization was preserving order, but Americans were not participating.

556 PUT NAMES ON LIGHT RATE VOTE PETITIONS

Contest Against 10-year Street Contract Now In Mayor's Hands

REFERENDUM DEMANDED

Next Council To Act On Request For Ballot

Twelve referendum petitions against the 10-year street-lighting contract with the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co., passed by council on Nov. 29, were filed with Mayor W. J. Graham Tuesday at 7:56 p. m. by Councilman Ben H. Gordon.

Mr. Gordon said the petitions were signed by 556 persons and more would have been obtained if the campaign against the contract had not ended in the "Christmas shopping season." Three hundred and two names were needed.

Circulators of the petitions were John E. Hinrod, city treasurer-elect; Donald Mason, and Clarence Helvering, councilmen-elect; Walter Heise, re-elected constable of Circleville township; Albert Hoffman, Elmer Merriman, Clifford Starkey, Charles Miller, George E. Caskey, Ralph Hoffman, and Mr. Gordon. Two of the petitions were handled by Gordon.

Go To Next Council

The petitions will probably be presented to council at its next regular meeting the first Wednesday in January. Council determines the sufficiency of the petitions, and if found satisfactory, an ordinance is passed to place the issue before voters.

The law demands that 10 percent of the persons who cast ballots at the last election sign referendum petitions before they become legal. Since 3,019 voted in the last municipal election 302 names were needed on the referendum move.

Mayor Graham was called at his home by Mr. Gordon to come to his office to receive the petitions.

The contract being attacked provides for 60 400-candlepower boulevard lights in the downtown district and 140 250-candlepower lights and 30 100-candlepower lights in the outlying district. At present the city has 149 400-candlepower lights, two 250-candlepower lights and 30 100-candlepower lights.

Utility officials said the 400-candlepower lights in outlying districts could be changed to 250-candlepower lights of modern design and more light made available. A boulevard lighting system similar to that used in Hillsboro was to be erected. Wood poles are used with metal brackets.

Costs Compared Monthly cost of the new system is $659.52 as compared with $585.88 for the present system. Boosters of the referendum move opposed the installation of wood poles, the length of the contract, (Continued on Page Ten)

ORIENT MAN, 50, GUILTY OF TWO LAW VIOLATIONS

Homer Whiteside, 50, of Orient, was found guilty of driving while intoxicated and illegal transportation of liquor Wednesday by Judge J. W. Adkins following trials in Common Pleas court.

He was fined $25 and costs and his rights to drive were suspended for six months on the driving charge and $100 and costs on the illegal transportation charge. He was committed to the county jail until the accounts are paid.

Whiteside was arrested Sunday night by John Stage, Jr., constable of Darby township. A pint of alleged illegal liquor was confiscated. Four witnesses were called in the trials.

Ghost Is Blamed For Babe's Death

LITTLE stirred by his story of a ghostly-dictated crime, authorities at Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., moved to punish a young farmhand for the slaying of his 15-year-old wife's infant son. The farmhand, Henry Nead, 19, shown above with his wife, confessed to police he bludgeoned the child to death on the orders of his father's ghost. Nead, according to Sheriff Henry Becker, married Lucila Shaw last June knowing her unborn child was not his. Nead told officers that the ghost threatened to cause him trouble the rest of his life unless it was placated by the blood of the child. The young wife stood by him. Parents of the young mother charged Nead often threatened to kill the child.

FARM SURPLUS HIT AS MENACE TO PROSPERITY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29—(UP)—Burdenome far surpluses "loom as a check on economic recovery," the bureau of agricultural economics reported today.

A. G. Black, chief of the bureau, said that much of the economic gain won by farmers during the last five years was threatened. Farm income which has been increasing steadily since 1932, suffered its first reversal in five years last November, Black said, but farm production costs this year were $500,000,000 above 1936.

Black said the situation "points to the need for government action"—a long-range farm plan, based on a permanent program of federal legislation to preserve the gains of the last five years and prevent a collapse of farm prices.

The increasing army of landless farmers is another problem which "presses for solution," Black said. The question of farm tenancy, particularly in the South, has become acute, he said.

Nearly one half of all farmers are tenants, the report said. More than 2,865,000 farms are operated by tenants, compared with 1,025,000 farms 50 years ago—an increase of 180 percent—Black reported.

DELAWARE POSTMASTER, FORMER SENATOR, DIES

DELAWARE, Dec. 29—(UP)—William E. Haas, 62, Delaware postmaster and a former state senator, died today of acute bronchitis. He had been ill only a few days.

He was born in Bucyrus. He had served twice as postmaster here, the latest appointment beginning on June 11, 1936. He was the father of William J. Haas, an assistant attorney general of Ohio.

PILOT RESCUED FROM ICY LAKE AT PUT-IN-BAY

Bodies of Woman and Two Men Being Hunted By Coast Guards

HEAVY FOG BLAMED

Flyer's Effort To Save Victim Is Told

SANDUSKY, Dec. 29—(UP)—A mail and passenger airplane, which operated among the Lake Erie islands today, plunged into the lake a half mile off Put-In-Bay, near Starve Island, drowning three persons.

Those drowned were Mrs. Nancy Howard, 42, Lexington, Ky.; Delbert Watkins, 30, of New Plymouth, O., and Albert Anderson, 45, Sandusky.

The plane's pilot, William Somogy, 30, of North Bass island, was taken alive from the icy water after clinging to the tail of the sinking plane for 30 minutes.

Enroute to Put-In-Bay The plane, a five-place, open-cockpit ship, was flying from the Isle of St. George to Put-In-Bay. When it took off, there were indications of fog closing in over the bay.

When midway through the two-mile trip, the plane flew into a fog bank which extended inland over the Put-In-Bay airport. Milton Hershberger, airport manager, heard the plane's motor as it circled the field hunting an opening in the fog.

Hershberger said he believed the pilot, losing his bearings, landed in the bay, believing he was heading into the airport.

Somogy, formerly of Lorain, fell unconscious when picked up by rescuers.

The plane had made regular mail deliveries to North Bass and Middle Sister islands. Somogy picked up the passengers on the return trip.

Although the western end of Lake Erie is dotted with ice cakes, the plane fell into open water. Only the tail of the plane remained above water.

Guardmen Searching

None of the bodies was recovered immediately. Coast guardsmen from Marblehead were searching the water.

Residents of the islands heard the plane flying low a few minutes before the crash.

Airplane traffic has prevailed in the vicinity of the islands for years in winter because of their inaccessibility when the lake is frozen over. Today's was the first serious accident on the line.

The victims were employees of Frank Ernst, vintner on North Bass island.

The plane left Fort Clinton early today on its daily run. The passengers were picked up at North Bass island.

Somogy had been flying the route for several years.

Watkins and Anderson were enroute to their homes on the mainland and Mrs. Howard was said to be on her way to visit her children in Lexington.

When he was revived on North Bass island after the accident, Somogy told coast guards he tried to rescue Mrs. Howard by holding her with one hand. He said the cold water finally forced him to let go and she sank. The plane was owned by Hershberger.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE TO LIST NOMINATIONS

Names of persons nominated as directors of the Chamber of Commerce will be announced at a meeting to be held Monday noon in the American hotel coffee shop.

Fourteen men, selected by the membership, will be nominated. Ballots will be sent to members next week for the election of seven directors. So far no date has been set for the annual meeting of the organization, usually held in January.

The meeting Monday will be a business session. No speaker has been obtained.

OHIO BANK LOAN FIGURES SHOW HUGE INCREASE

Association Declares New Confidence Is Proved By Large Volume

MONEY IS AVAILABLE

Many Savings Deposits Started In Year

COLUMBUS, Dec. 29—Banks in Ohio are starting the year 1938 with more than 18 million dollars in loans to individuals and business, an increase of more than 80 millions over the total for last year, according to an announcement of official figures compiled by the Ohio Bankers Association. Total loans are currently $841,000,000.

These comparisons of bank figures take on an added significance as the first of this nature issued by the bankers' organization since 1932. They are based on the combined latest available reports of both the State Banking Department for the state banks and the Comptroller of the Currency for the national banks in Ohio. They cover 713 banks in the state.

"This increase in loans indicates a return of business confidence during the period just passed," Hugh L. Wilson, president of the Bankers Association said, "and shows the willingness of Ohio's banks to do their part in providing funds for materials and payrolls."

"While the increase must be gratifying to all, it should be remembered that there is still too much idle money which needs to go to work in order to help men to go to work."

"Another good indication for private business is that local demands for good loans have increased and been satisfied by local banks despite additional competition in the lending field. It shows that the local banks can more than meet 'remote control' credit."

Resources of Ohio's banks are now $2,623,650,000, an increase of more than 184 million dollars over last year, the Bankers Association reports.

Deposits increased during the year by $168,461,000, bringing their total to more than $2,318,217,000, the reports show. A substantial part of this is in savings deposits.

While general totals are not yet back to where they were before the depression, the fact that bank loans have been increasing somewhat more rapidly than deposits indicates less idle money and is a healthful sign, bankers association officials point out.

Cards of Merit

In the days of the "Little Red School House" the teachers then gave "Reward of Merit" cards and if you were good, you got one. And some teachers gave them out to their pets and all the others, alike. We received three cards of this kind the other day from Mrs. Ida Dum Shultz. Two of them she had received, one of which was dated 1882, with L. Wagner as her teacher. And another given to William Dum by our Jerome Peters now in his 90th year and living at St. Paul, when he taught on the Loffer Hill in Madison township, not less than 60 years ago. Guess we got one, too, which is filed carefully away somewhere. There are but few of us living who were Mr. Peters' pupils at that time. The Hines family, Clara, Ella, Ida, Alma and Edward, is the only one we know of whose members are all living and who were pupils of Mr. Peters at that time.

Easter April 17

The "sure sign boys" are already beginning to worry about Easter not happening this next Spring until away up in April, the 17th, they say. If Spring begins at the ending of Winter which they tell us is on March 22, they can't figure out why put off Easter so long? It'll just upset things again because nobody dares plant potatoes before Good Friday and that'll be the middle of April and anyone who knows his potatoes knows that's too late to get a good start. Congressman Claypool was here yesterday when the boys were worrying about the late Easter, and when he goes back to Washington he'll see what can be done about it. The boys of his district must be treated right and he'll see to it.

Permanent injunction against further construction of a building on a lot in Eastlawn addition to Ashville and an order that the material be removed within 30 days was allowed by Judge J. W. Adkins in Common Pleas court Tuesday in the case of Elmer Malone against Carl Rossiter and Charles Fowler, all Ashville.

The action was based on a covenant in deeds for lots in the addition stating that the lots were to be used for residence purposes only and each residence unit erected was to cost not less than $1,500. Mr. Malone contended a building costing less than $1,500 was being built by Fowler on a lot owned by Rossiter.

NEW DRAMATIC SERIAL ...

A new dramatic serial will have its premiere broadcast on Tuesday, Jan. 4. The title of the drama is "Those We Love" and it will be heard every Tuesday from 8 to 8:30 p.m. (EST) over the NBC blue network, replacing "Husbands and Wives."

"Those We Love" is a story of modern American life written by Agnes Ridgway. Miss Ridgway is the author of several fine one act plays which have been heard on the Rudy Vallee Hour and as a result of her success with these she was commissioned to write the new serial for Pond's.

36 TERRORISTS IN MINE STRIFE ORDERED TO PEN

Federal Judge Decides On Maximum Terms For Illinois Men

APPEALS ARE MAPPED

50 Lives, Millions Lost In Supremacy War

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 29 — (UP) — The 36 men convicted of terrorism and bombings in the southern Illinois coal fields were prepared today for immediate filing of appeals from the maximum sentences of four years each, imposed by a federal judge who regretted he could not make their terms longer.

All except two of the defendants were members of the Progressive Miners of America, rebel offshoot of John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers of America. They were found guilty Dec. 18 by a federal jury of interfering with the U. S. mails, interstate and foreign commerce.

U. S. District Judge Charles A. Briggie sentenced each to two years imprisonment and a fine of $10,000 on the first count, and one year and a $5,000 fine on each of the other counts. The sentences will run concurrently.

They were indicted as a result of a five year reign of terror during an conflict with the U. M. W. A., for union control of the coal mines.

50 Lost Lives
The strife, which started in 1932, cost at least 50 lives and many millions of dollars.

Judge Briggie denied a motion for a new trial and bail. The defendants began serving sentences immediately. They were returned to jail after adjournment of court and, unless the appellate court intercedes, will be removed to a penitentiary this week.

"Perjury was rampant in the case," Judge Briggie said. "It is my only regret that punishment is inadequate."

"The extreme penalty that I am authorized to impose is inadequate punishment for those who in any manner contributed to the ruthless destruction of property, as disclosed in the evidence here — all carried on in a campaign with reckless disregard for life and human safety."

"It is true that some of the defendants are less guilty than others and if it appears that I am harsh with those who are less guilty it is only because a greater penalty is not available for those of greater guilt."

Attorneys said they would file appeals at Chicago today or tomorrow.

Those sentenced included three P. M. A. officials, Vice President John Fancher, Springfield; and Executive Board Members Dan McGill, Springfield, and Jess Anderson, Harrisburg, Ill.

Forty-one men were indicted originally but cases against four were dismissed. The other was granted a new trial after suffering a heart attack.

Presentation of evidence, which reviewed the long struggle for supremacy in the coal fields, required five weeks.

REV. HARPER OFFICIATES
AT JENKINS SERVICES

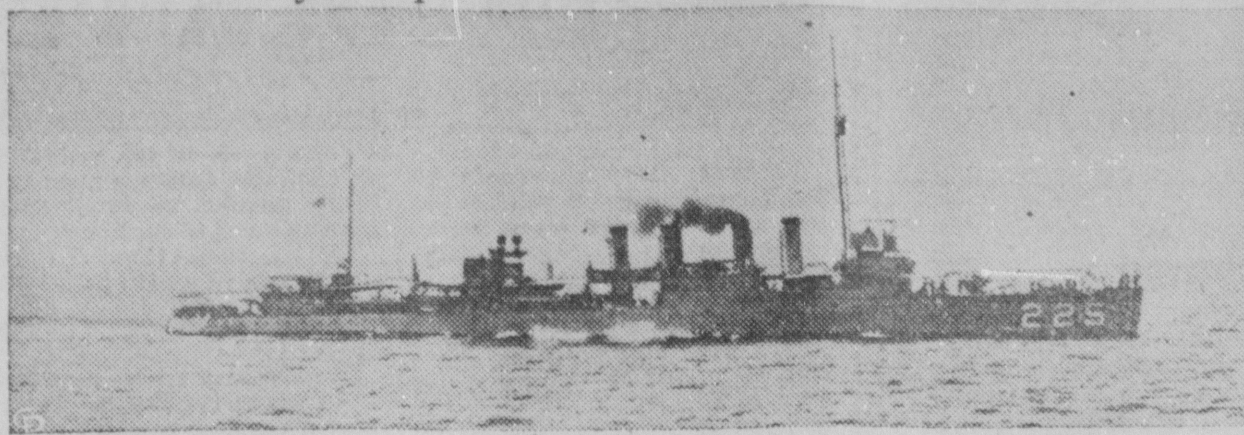

Among the out-of-town persons who attended the funeral of Rosemary Jenkins, 14, held Monday afternoon in the Brethren church, were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hakes, Miss Mary Foresman, Mrs. Herbert Crane, Mrs. Louise Heath and Mrs. Mildred Russell, all of Columbus.

Pallbearers were Alice Huffer, Jane Huffer, Mary Elizabeth Groce, Kathryn Turner, Martha Lee Kerr and Virginia Gusman. The Rev. T. C. Harper officiated.

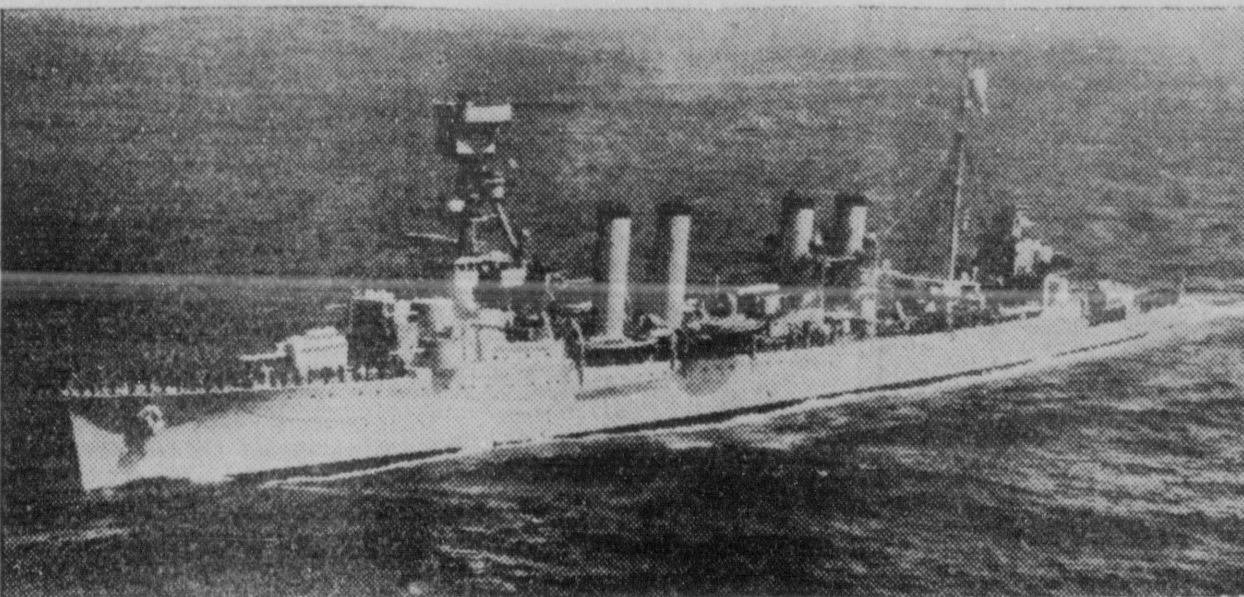

Rosemary, a daughter of Lewis Jenkins, Watt street, died in University hospital after a long illness of aplastic anemia.

During the first half of 1937, U. S. railroads carried 246,997,594 passengers—an increase of 10,000,000 over the corresponding period for 1936.

Serum Treatment Urged To Combat Pneumonia

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 29—(UP)—Scientists learned today that pneumonia, rated third highest as a death-dealing disease, is fatal among salesmen and clerks, laborers and factory workers, four times more than it is among professional classes—and that half of its victims might be saved through serum treatment.

Drs. Russell L. Cecil, Louis I. Dublin and Donald B. Armstrong of New York told the American Association for the Advancement of Science that the disease has a lower mortality rate among the professional occupational class than any other.

They conducted a study for eight years in 10 selected states. Of their case histories, 135 percent of unskilled workers died of the disease compared to only 39 percent of professional workers. Agricultural workers were next lowest with a 43 percent rating.

Higher Among Males
The disease has a higher death rating among males than females and the excess is more marked in industrial than in agricultural states, they said.

"Of the number who now die from lobar pneumonia," they reported, "half might be saved through the serum treatment."

They pointed out the advantages of determining where the disease strikes most often, thus giving time for more complete treatment and administration of serum as soon as the ailment is diagnosed.

Pneumonia, they said, causes more deaths than any other disease except the heart ailments and cancer.

Prof. Frederick S. Breed of the University of Chicago told the convention that American education, the foundations of which were once regarded as secure like other social disciplines, is in a state of bewilderment and confusion.

"The venerable institution known as the subject curriculum is being assailed vigorously and with it the hitherto flourishing science of educational measurement."

The attack on measurement, he said, is not directed at details of its superstructure, but at its very foundations.

He said critics are not merely destructive but are constructive in the sense that they propose to revise the "presuppositional set-up of American education in such a way that one of the most promising and indispensable features of scientific educational advancement—the measurement of the results of instruction—will no longer be either promising or indispensable."

Source Traced

He said the attack originates from a philosophic source. In essence, he added, it represents an application of practical instrumentalism to education, "a type of thinking which branched off the main trunk of philosophy near the beginning of the present century."

FATHER COUGHLIN'S TASK

FATHER CHARLES E. COUGHLIN'S proposed resumption of radio broadcasting is viewed by the American public with mixed emotions. That is one difficulty with this unusual publicist. His critics often say he arouses more emotion than thought. Be that as it may, he has a rare talent for making both friends and enemies. Many thousands of the former have urged his return to the air. Perhaps as many wish he would keep off the air.

That is the way with Father Coughlin. People are strongly for him or strongly against him. There seems to be no middle ground.

Yet the American public has to find a middle ground, where honest men of different viewpoints can meet and co-operate, if this nation is to get out of its present troubles. It is no time for philippics, for angry denunciation, for personal abuse of any man or group. It is time for conciliation, a time for calm, patient explanation of the present economic and political problem, so that people may understand how we got into it and how we may get out of it.

This need calls for high talent and devotion. It also calls for a type of service which clergymen are particularly qualified to give.

If there is one contribution above others, needed supremely in this selfish, bitter and confused age, it is advocacy of the Golden Rule, the preaching of Peace and Good Will in business, government and the social struggle. Here is a cause worthy of all Father Coughlin's eloquence.

WORD ACCENT

A NEWSPAPER columnist with an ear for pronunciation publishes an instructive little poem in which he rhymes faces with grimaces, romance with finance, vagaries with dictionaries, ideal with hymeneal, omen with abdomen, and Solon says with condolences. And if you don't think he's right in every case, just look them up in the dictionary.

One of the most curious things in American pronunciation is the current tendency, represented in all of these examples, to move word accents back to the first syllable when they don't belong there.

A particularly queer example is the word "effective", now commonly pronounced "ee-fective", in which two errors are combined. The natural stress is shifted back from the second syllable to the first, and the first syllable is changed from a short "e" to a long "e". Even President Roosevelt, usually careful in his diction, has been caught doing that.

Of course, if business and government and labor would rather hang separately than hang together, that's probably O. K. with Destiny.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . Hour by Hour

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

Up to find the tempo of the world slowed down following the great holiday rush that left everyone breathless and more or less happy. Wondered what will be the next Japanese outrage and then cranked the wagon and headed for the post. Found it deserted, so gathered the epistles and after almost running down a young bicyclist arrived at the plant to assume harness for the day.

Here come two boys, one eight and the other ten, members of a big family practically overlooked by Santa Claus. The lads had heard of the scrivener's toy train and were come to collect, unless beaten to the present. A pair of happy kids, those, as they took off with the big package in their custody.

Received a note from Congressman Tom Jenkins and a copy of one of his recent speeches in Capitol Hill. Tom, in some quarters, is being mentioned as a possible aspirant for the Republican nomination for governor, opposing John Brickner. A waste of time this year, really, for any Republican.

Chatted with Mrs. W. B. Morrison, who is 82 years young, and her daughter, Mrs. Isaac Chrissinger. The grand old lady thinks that modern girls had no better times than she had as a girl, even with all present-day means of entertainment. No electric lights when she was a child, the illumination coming mostly from fireplaces. Grease lamps were lighted for special occasions. She explained that a grease lamp used lard as fuel and was none too bright, but its illumination was pretty. May that fine woman's years be many, many more.

There goes Mack Parrett, who has resigned as secretary of the Pumpkin Show Society. Did regret his decision, for Mack has done an excellent job. Wonder who he's become of Henry Joseph? Never see him anymore, but understand he is in the ville almost daily. Received a postcard from Nate Groban, who is in Cincinnati and doing well.

Not long now until the New Year. Many resolutions of merit come to mind, but doubt seriously that I would keep them. Few persons do. However, one acquires some merit by going on record as desiring to do better.

Read Roger Babson's forecast for 1938 that will be published this week. Roger is one economist with an idea of what it is all about, and he generally is reasonably accurate in his business predictions. The treatise is yet in confidence and its contents may not be divulged.

A tiresome day of routine and finally home for dinner and a quiet evening, except for an hour playing Christmas games with the daughter. Then a book, and at a late hour to bed by way of the refrigerator that yielded a tasty sandwich of beef and a beaker of milk.

EXPERTS DOUBTFUL OF HOUSING

WASHINGTON—The Administration is banking heavily on its new Housing Act, now before Congress, but there are two important things which are going to cause trouble.

1. The fact that when the public starts building houses, the price of building materials immediately goes up, thereby diminishing any building boom.
2. The fact that our industrial and social system has changed in such a way as to discourage home-buying.

The first of these—increased building costs—was what hampered the British during their first housing experiment. Their first building program, started in 1920, failed because the determination of building costs was left entirely to supply and demand.

In the United States, also, it was rising costs in 1937 which nipped the building boomlet which started in 1936.

To avoid this mistake at the start of their second building program in 1924, the British called building contractors, building material manufacturers and labor unions, obtaining from them an agreement that prices and wages would not be hiked after the Government started its housing program.

So far, there has been no such step by the Roosevelt Administration. Some of the President's advisers have talked with different sections of the building industry and said:

"Now of course, we'll expect you to keep prices down."

But there has been no general agreement throughout the industry.

DEFFECT NO 2

Deffect No. 2, however, is far more important. Real fact is that the old urge of every man to own his own home now is diluted by four factors: Easy divorce, smaller families, the automobile and the machine age.

Today families are less permanent. More families are pulled apart by divorce, and there is no definite conviction in the minds of many couples that they want to make a permanent investment in a home. Also the smaller family makes apartment houses cheaper and more convenient.

Even more important, probably, is the shift to large scale industrial production. Today when a factory shuts down, the worker frequently gets into his car and goes to another city looking for work. Sometimes he takes his family with him. A home of his own on which he is still paying installments is the last thing he wants.

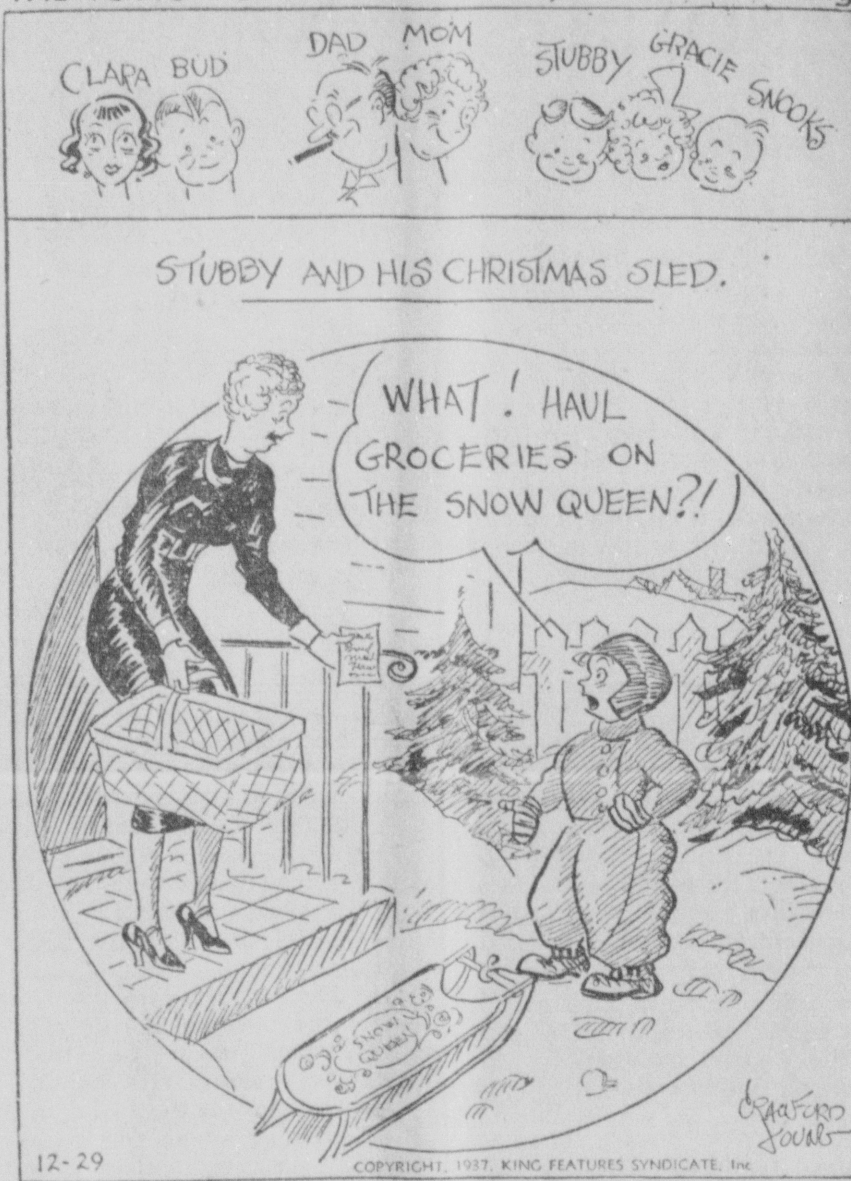

Drought in the Dust Bowl, the tenant farmer system in the South has put a premium on mobility for a considerable portion of the population.

HOUSES FOR RENT

Today the United States is short some 2,000,000 houses. But studies by the National Housing Committee show that the great need is not so much houses to buy, as houses to rent. Furthermore, the need is for cheap renting houses. Almost all of the 2,000,000 houses needed are for the group paying $30 a month rent or less. There is a surplus of houses for those in the upper rental brackets.

Common Manifestations in Infections of Nails

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN A LARGE series of patients presenting abnormal conditions of the finger or toenails, the commonest ones were due to fungous infection, the second commonest due to infection of the nail bed with staphylococci or pus germs, and the next commonest due to eczema or psoriasis. So it will probably be most profitable, in a study of nail diseases, to consider these commonest manifestations.

Dr. Clendingen

The commonest form of fungous infection of the nail is that due to ringworm. This affects the nail alone and almost never the surrounding skin. It is always dry and affects one or several nails, but rarely all the nails of the fingers and toes. The nail is dry and lusterless and rough, having shed the greater part of its external layer of cells. It often shows striations and has a worn-eaten appearance. The nail is sometimes, but not often, entirely lost, but unless the progress of the condition is stopped it is reduced to a dry, striated stump situated near the nail wall at the root.

When he sees nails with such an appearance, the physician should make shavings from the nail and after soaking these shavings in 40 per cent caustic potash solution, look for the threads of the fungus under the microscope.

Treatment of ringworm of the nails must be carried out with great patience because these infections do not yield readily. After having tried wet dressings with iodine, and bathing the nails with sodium hyposulphite and acetic acid, Dr. Pardo-Castello, to my surprise, has gone back to the old-fashioned Whitfield's ointment, combined with fractional doses of X-ray. The ointment should be rubbed into the nails with a stiff brush, and the dressing kept in place with adhesive plaster.

Another form of infection is due to yeasts. These, different from the ringworm infections, are wet; there is a weeping exudation, and also the skin around the nail is likely to be involved. Housewives, dishwashers and washerwomen are particularly likely to be involved for natural reasons. The diseased patches usually begin at the edge of the nail plate and burrow under it, appearing as creamy or oval white patches. The treatment is the same as for ringworm, but the use of sodium perborate, made into a paste with a few drops of water and thoroughly worked under the nail fold with a cotton tipped toothpick, can be used as a variant.

Simple pus infection of the skin around the nail—paronychia—is the second commonest form of nail infection. It can be seen on examination of such a nail that the skin is involved first and the nail only secondarily. There is redness of the skin, and on pressure it is almost always possible to squeeze out a little pus from around and under the skin edges. Injury, as with splinters, is usually the real origin.

Treatment with various antiseptics is the best. Wet saturated boric acid dressings in the acute stage, usually clear these disagreeable affairs up and prevent unsightly deformities.

Manicurists should be trained to be on the lookout for these infections and especially to use sterilized instruments before and after contact with them. In fact, too hearty manicuring is often the cause of the last named type—paronychia.

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Norfolk & Western railroad detectives came to Circleville to investigate the damage to a signal box at the Clinton street crossing. Repairs will cost $150.

Burr H. Rader, Pickaway township, newly elected county commissioner, was administered the oath of office by Probate Judge E. A. Brown.

Circleville will finish 1937 with a deficit of more than $11,000. About $1,000 remains in the general fund but outstanding bills total $12,075.02.

10 YEARS AGO

Celebrating the fifth birthday of her son, Hulise, Mrs. Hulise Hays, N. Court street, entertained the members of his kindergarten to a party.

George Smith, 68, retired farmer, E. Main street, died at his home of a stroke of apoplexy, suffered after a day of hunting.

After 35 years of newspaper work in Circleville, Robert H. Bates, resigned his position with The Herald to enter the job printing business.

25 YEARS AGO
G. W. Limebaugh & Co. delivered 11 large bales of dressed furs to the Adams Express Co., for shipment to London. There were 16,200 skins in the shipment.

Damage estimated at $100 resulted from a fire at the saloon of "Doc" Foster, negro, Pickaway and Corwin street. A defective flue caused the blaze.

E. B. Strawser, Walnut township, is ill of pneumonia.

NOW THAT Northwestern university has been bequeathed a stable of race horses, Zadok Dumbkopf expects any day now that track dope sheets will form part of mathematics study.

We find, after investigation, there is no truth in the rumor that N. U. is to change its school song to "Boots and Saddles".

It now seems to be Japan's turn to make history of which its future generations will be heartily ashamed.

COPYRIGHT, RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER 43

IT WAS IN August that we heard from Lionel—a jubilant letter. He had done a set of stories for one of the big-paying magazines, and he had been asked for as many more as he could write.

"Everybody has forgiven us, Jerry. They have killed the fatted calf, and Bernice is having the time of her young life saying 'I told you so' to her parents. Nothing succeeds like success. I wish we might come out to see you and Mimi, but Bernice and I are thinking of Paris—that is, if this unholy invasion of Belgium by Germany doesn't stir things up too much. However, why worry? With modern ammunition no war can possibly last six months.

"The whole town is talking of your romance. It has been featured in all the papers, and I am sending you the latest account. Nothing authentic, I am sure, but if your life is anything like this sounds it must be at top notch. Mrs. Le Brun says that Mimi's letters are rapturous—that she adores the mountains, and that you and she spend hours in the saddle. It sounds good to me at this particular moment, when the thermometer here is in the nineties.

"All of our world is, of course, away, but I have these stories to do—and, as I have said, Paris is in the offing. Olga is also staying on. There is talk that she may marry again—she is seen everywhere with a steel magnate who has just brought his plant to St. Louis. It would be the irony of fate, wouldn't it, if Olga should add multi-millions to grandfather's fortune? I wish highwaymen were in fashion, I'd tie my head up in a handkerchief, and strip her some night of her diamonds! Oh, well, old chap, here's to your health and happiness, but I know you have them without my wishing. What are you writing? Don't stop because you have married a wife. Stiles Sanderson groans every time your name is mentioned. He says you are a genius spoiled by luxury and loving. He quotes Aldrich—you remember, don't you, 'The Flight of the Duchess'?

"The woman I loved was now my bride. And the home I wanted was my own. I turned to the Goddess satisfied, But the Goddess had somehow flown . . .

"For a man must live in a garret aloof.

And have few friends and go poorly clad, With an old hat stopping a chink in the roof, To keep the Goddess constant and glad."

I read Lionel's letter to Mimi as we rode home from the little post-office at the crossroads. She made no comment when I finished, but there was a flush on her cheeks.

"It was good of you," I said, as I put the letter back in my pocket, "to write that way to your mother."

The flush deepened. "I knew people would be asking questions. And I didn't want them to know the truth."

I turned in my saddle. "Just what do you mean by that, Mimi? What is the truth?"

"Oh, well, things are different, aren't they, from what we expected?"

"Yes."

"I told Mother that I adore the mountains, and I do. And when we are on our horses, Jerry, I am happy—that's enough for Mother."

If I had given all the facts—that you work like a slave, while I twiddle my thumbs, we should be the laughing stock of St. Louis.

"Do you think I care," I flung out furiously, "what St. Louis thinks?"

"I care," obstinately, "they are my people."

There seemed to be nothing to say in answer to that, so we rode on in silence. I had had another letter which I did not show Mimi. It was from the employment agency, and it gave me no encouragement. At this season of the year women preferred work in the hotels to that on ranches. They might be able to do better for me later.

The news seemed at the moment appalling. That very morning our half-breed, Sally, had left us. She and her husband had felt the call of the open road, and she was going back to visit her own people until cold weather came on.

I had cooked the breakfast, and had carried Mimi's chocolate in to her. She had been adorable in a frilly blue negligee and lace cap. The contrast between the luxury encompassed by the four walls of her room, and the state of the kitchen after Sally's hurried departure, had been startling. I had sat and talked with her, trying to make a joke of it all, while my heart was like lead.

I proposed, before I left her, that she should ride to the postoffice with me. I had found that out of doors she was more like herself. The untidiness of the house oppressed her, weighed on her spirits. While she dressed I had made things as straight as I could. I refused to face the fact that we should have stayed at home, to bring some kind of order out of the awful chaos of Sally's housekeeping.

Yet, should we have stayed? And why face facts? It was with a sort of eat-drink-and-be-merry attitude that I had closed the door behind us, and had left Jason on guard.

To push the joys of our adventure to its extreme limits, I suggested later that we ride back to the house—get the little car, and motor to the hotel for luncheon. When we returned that night we could have a picnic supper—there would be no dishes, no cares until the next day.

Mimi was at once lighted by anticipation. "You're a darling, Jerry." And so young was I, so ready to be happy, that I flung all forebodings away from my mind, and took my holiday with a will.

When we entered the hotel, we were much observed. We still wore our riding clothes, and we created, as always, a sensation. I was picturesque in corduroys and broad smock, while Mimi, in gray, with her peacock feather, was like a gallant boy.

I asked for a room, that we might make ourselves presentable, and when I had signed for it I cast my eyes idly over the names on the register.

Then, suddenly, the world turned black. There was a scrawled signature which seemed to have a sinister significance; a name I should never have looked for in that place.

I lost my nerve completely. I wanted to pick Mimi up and fly with her back to our ugly red-painted house and shut her in. I was overwhelmed by a sense of impending catastrophe.

I controlled myself, however, and followed the boy to our room. As the bright light from the window streamed upon me, I saw Mimi's face, serving me with some curiosity. "How pale you are, Jerry? Aren't you well?"

I caught at that as giving me a possible excuse. "I have a beastly headache. Would you mind very much if we had lunch in our room?"

A shadow fell across her face, but she managed to say, cheerfully, "Of course we'll have it—if you'd rather."

My mood changed in a moment. I decided recklessly to take the chance. If the thing was to be, it would be. Why try to hide? "I'll rest a bit, and see what happens," I told her, "I don't want to spoil our day."

We went down, finally, to the dining room. We were late, and most of the guests had eaten and gone. I had little appetite, but Mimi was hungry, and enjoyed the really delicious food. She was as gay as you please and talked and sparkled. I responded as best I could. To people at the other tables we must have seemed at our ease and carefree. And how could they know that the sight of every tall man who entered the room drained the blood from my face and made my heart beat madly?

It was not until we were a mile or two away from the hotel that I drew a quiet breath. Mimi insisted on driving the car back, and I did not protest. My nerves were shaken, but that was not the reason I let her drive. I had a feeling that in keeping her eyes on the road she might miss seeing, clearly, anyone who passed.

Nothing happened on the way home, but I knew the blow would fall, and it did. Three days later we were riding up the trail towards the lake in the cup of the mountains. The ascent was steep, but our ponies knew every inch of it. They stepped carefully, and took what seemed almost insurmountable hazards with an air of lazy accustomedness. It is impossible to give in words the charm of that high country—the wine of the air, the perfume of sun-warmed evergreens, the color and contrast of golden aspen and gray rocks, the emerald shadows of the wooded spaces.

We came at last to a plateau, where our horses rested. From this height we could survey the trail below. We could see the faint line of it, lost here and there among the trees, but emerging always in a zig-zag descent towards the valley. Not a soul was in sight. I lifted Mimi from her horse, and held her in my arms. "This is our world, my dearest. Say that you love me, Mimi."

She said it. She seemed all mine at that moment. My doubts fled. She was mine, no one could take her from me . . .

We had brought our lunch with us, and when I brought it from our bags, I saw that Mimi was again staring down the trail.

"There's someone coming up," she told me.

I crossed the intervening space and stood beside her. Far down a horseman was ascending. He wore a broad hat, which, at that distance, gave the effect of an animated mushroom as it bobbed up and down. As he came nearer we caught the "tic-tac" of his horse's hoofs on the loose rocks. Then we saw his lacquered boots glisten in the sun. He rode in the English style, and lacked the swinging grace which makes the cowboy the centaur of the plains.

Higher he came, and higher. I was aware of the horseman's height, of his length of limb. Then suddenly my breath seemed to leave me. I knew who it was. The thing had happened! Here was the man whose name had been scrawled on the register. Andy Fuller was riding up the trail!

CAUSTIC!

The farmer was showing his new hand around the farm, explaining all the jobs he would have to do. When the list had been completed the man asked, "How about clearing the snow from the sidewalk?"

"What on earth do you mean? There's no snow at this time of year," said the farmer.

"No, but by the time I've finished my jobs there will be."

Poems That Live

THE HIGHER GOOD

Father, I will not ask for wealth and fame,
Though once they would have
joyed my carnal sense:
I shudder not to bear a hated name,
Wanting all wealth, myself my sole defense.
But give me, Lord, eyes to behold the truth;
A seeing sense that knows the eternal right;
A heart with pity filled, and gentlest ruth;
A manly faith that makes all darkness light;
Give me the power to labor for mankind;
Make me the mouth of such as cannot speak;
Eyes let me be to groping men and blind;
A conscience to the base; and to the weak
Let me be hands and feet; and to the foolish mind;
And lead still further on such as thy kingdom seek.

Annabel White Bride Of George J. Stoll

Ceremony Read at Residence Near
New Holland

At a home wedding of quiet simplicity, Miss Annabel White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse White, of near New Holland, became the bride of Mr. George J. Stoll, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stoll, of Beaver, Tuesday, Dec. 28, at 7 o'clock.

The ceremony was performed before the spacious fireplace in the living room of the White home, which was decorated with lighted candles and potted green plants. The service was read by the Rev. J. A. Goddard, of Somerset, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. McFadden, sister and brother-in-law of the bride, were the attendants.

For her marriage, the bride was attired in a frock of wine transparent velvet with rhinestone trimming and she used black accessories. She wore a corsage of bride's roses.

Mrs. Stoll was graduated from the New Holland high school in the class of 1932. She attended Otterbein college at Westerville. She was a pledge of the Rho Kappa Delta sorority. She also was a student at Wilmington college and was a member of the Tau Theta Chi sorority and Sigma Zeta, honorary social science fraternity. For the last four years she has been a teacher in the Jackson township schools.

Mr. Stoll is a graduate of Beaver high school and Wilmington college. He has been a teacher in the Beaver community for the last five years.

Following the impressive single ring ceremony, a buffet luncheon was served. During the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Stoll left for a short motor trip through the southern states.

Guests at the wedding included Mrs. Harp Van Riper, Circleville; Mr. and Mrs. Earl White, Mr. William Hulse, Mr. Almer White, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rowland and daughter Jean and son Wendell, of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. John Stoll and daughters, Hazel and Garnet, Mr. and Mrs. Pearly Quince and son, Junior, Mr. Walden Glassburn, Mr. Donald Quince, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stoll and daughters, Marie and son, Bill, Mrs. Otto Evans and daughters, Marie, Joan and Dorothy, of Beaver; Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Pile and daughter, Jane Ellen, of Toledo; Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Brewer, of South Charleston; Mr. and Mrs. Jess White and daughters, Elizabeth and Joan, and son, John.

Hartman-Poling

Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Poling, of Saltcreek township, are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Virginia Mae, to Mr. Marvin L. Hartman, son of Mrs. Hazel Hartman, of Tilton.

They were married Christmas at 6 o'clock in the evening, the service being read by the Rev. Sam C. Elisea, of Tilton. The single ring ceremony took place before an altar formed of banked ferns in the living room of the Hartman home. For her marriage the bride wore a blue velvet dress with matching accessories and carried an arm bouquet of white roses and sweetpeas. Miss Kathleen Greene, was bridesmaid, and was attired in a blue lace frock. Mr. Sterling Poling, brother of the bride, served as best man.

Following the ceremony, a turkey dinner was served in the dining room by Mrs. Poling and Mrs. Hartman. The table was decorated in a color scheme of blue and white, and a large decorated wedding cake centered the table.

Covers were placed for James Wolfe, grandfather of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. George Poling, grandparents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Poling and sons, Robert, Sterling and daughter, Dorothy, the Rev. Sam Elisea, Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Wolfe, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Shaeffer, James Hartman, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Wolfe, Mr. Charles Wolfe, Miss Leota Poling, Miss Jane Dawson, Miss Kathleen Greene, Mrs. Hazel Hartman and the new Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hartman.

Mr. and Mrs. Hartman were graduated from Saltcreek township school in the class of 1935. They will make their home in Tilton where Mr. Hartman is employed as a rural mail carrier.

Elks' New Year's Dance

Invitations were issued by the Circleville Lodge of Elks, Tuesday, to the members of the organization and their friends to help celebrate the coming of the New Year at the annual dance, Dec. 31.

Plans for the affair, which will be as usual one of the social highlights of the winter season, have been completed by the committee, headed by Melvin Mettler. His assistants, Ben Gordon, Gilbert Starkey, Aaron Lumpkin and Andrew Thomas, have reported that everything is ready for the anticipated crowd. The many inquiries by the club members from persons planning to attend from out-of-town indicate a large attendance.

The entire facilities of the club will be turned over to the dance committee for the entertainment of their guests. Arrangements for the refreshments to be served during the intermission by the house committee have been completed.

Music will be by the Casa Rey Swing Band.

F. D. REQUESTS CONGRESS FOR NEW DEFENSES

War and Navy Departments To Be Strengthened For Any Emergency

"CONCERN" IS EXPRESSED

Two Cruisers, New Aircraft Carriers Asked

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29—(UP)—President Roosevelt rushed plans today for increased national defense on land, sea and in the air.

Inquiries at the war and navy departments revealed that the President, alarmed by world-wide unrest and particularly by the threatening international situation resulting from the armaments race and disregard of treaty obligations, has given orders to press rearmament plans for the American fighting forces at all possible speed, regardless of budget-balancing requirements or other domestic political considerations.

These inquiries revealed that Mr. Roosevelt expects to ask congress to appropriate well over $1,000,000,000 for national defense during the 1938-39 fiscal year which begins July 1.

The navy supply bill is expected to call for about $580,000,000, in addition to special appropriations required for such extra warship construction as the President may request. The army supply bill probably will total $415,000,000. In addition to both of these bills several deficiency supply bills are anticipated.

More Warships Asked
Mr. Roosevelt revealed at his press conference yesterday that he planned, in view of his "growing concern" over world events, to ask for the construction of some additional warships, over and above those provided in the regular naval appropriation bill.

The regular bill provides for starting construction during this fiscal year on two additional battleships of 35,000 tons each, two light cruisers, eight destroyers and six submarines. These are all authorized by the Vinson-Trammell bill providing for a "treaty" navy by 1942.

The "extra" or "if" ships which the President has in mind, it was believed, are two or more additional cruisers and at least one more aircraft carrier. Construction of these is not provided in the Vinson-Trammell bill.

The United States is now built up to "treaty" limits on heavy cruisers and airplane carriers, and needs only two light cruisers to reach treaty limits in this category. These two cruisers are provided in the regular naval supply bill for the coming fiscal year.

Since the budget figures were made up some time ago, President Roosevelt said in a letter to Chairman Edward T. Taylor, D. Colo., of the house appropriations committee, that "world events have caused me growing concern."

F. D. Commander-in-Chief
"Under the Construction the President is commander-in-chief of the army and navy and has, therefore, a very specific duty to safeguard the defense of national interests," he said.

"In speaking of my growing concern, I do not refer to any specific nation or to any specific threat against the United States. The fact is that in the world as a whole many nations are not only continuing but are enlarging their armament programs."

"I have used every conceivable effort to stop this trend and to work toward a decrease of armaments. Facts, nevertheless, are facts and the United States must recognize them."

The President then informed Taylor that after congress meets on Jan. 3 "it is possible that I may send supplementary estimates for commencing construction of a number of ships in addition to the above program."

Taylor indicated that such estimates, if submitted, might be made the first order of business for the new congress.

Some time ago, informed sources said, the President ordered war department officials to speed up the airplane purchase program. As a result, budget committee members were informed, the army air corps now has on order a total of 1,352 new airplanes of all categories, and that these are now being delivered at the rate of two to five planes a day. The army air corps is almost a year ahead of schedule on deliveries of new planes to complete the army's program of 2,320 serviceable military aircraft by 1940.

The army air corps now has on hand a total of 1,550 planes of all types, of which some 500 are either obsolete or are in overhaul shops. Delivery schedules call for completion and delivery to the air corps of 580 new planes during 1938, and another 475 during 1939. This latter figure may be boosted to over 500 for 1939 by purchase contracts now in process of negotiation.

Within the next 15 months the army air corps expects to double the number of serviceable and modern fighting aircraft now on hand, it was said.

Questions and Answers

Please give me a recipe for a Grape Bavarian cream. I want to use it as a dessert for the holidays.

Grape Bavarian Cream is a rich gelatin type dessert which may be used for sponge cake or angel food cake filling. We make it this way:

Grape Bavarian Cream
2 Tbsp. gelatin
2 C. cold water
1 C. boiling water
1 C. grape juice
1/4 C. sugar
1 C. whipping cream
1 Tbsp. lemon juice

Soften the gelatin in cold water. Dissolve gelatin and sugar in the boiling water. Chill, add grape juice, lemon juice, and when it begins to stiffen fold in whipped cream. Pour into molds or shapes desired and chill until firm. Serve with whipped cream.

Please give me a recipe for fudge squares, a rich Brownie-like cookie.

This recipe will meet your requirements, we're sure. Here's the way to proceed:

Brownies
3/4 C. sifted cake flour
1/2 tsp. baking powder
1/2 C. butter
2 squares (2 oz.) unsweetened chocolate, melted
1 C. sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
1/2 C. chopped pecans
1 tsp. vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and dash of salt, and sift again. Add butter to chocolate and mix well. Add sugar gradually to eggs, beating thoroughly; then chocolate mixture and blend. Add flour and mix well, then nuts and vanilla. Bake in greased pan, 8x8x2 inches, in moderate oven (350 degrees) 35 minutes, or until done. Cut in squares; remove from pan and cool on cake rack. Makes two dozen Brownies.

Is buttermilk fattening? Will drinking buttermilk cause an acid condition?

One of the principal values of buttermilk is its content of lactic acid and of organisms which form lactic acid. The acid condition it produces is strictly local, and it does not have an acidic effect on the blood.

The fattening value of foods depends on their caloric value. There are 88 calories in a cupful of buttermilk; in a cupful of whole milk there are 120 calories. This difference is due mainly to the difference in the butter-fat content of the two products; whole milk also contains more sugar than the buttermilk. Buttermilk is therefore definitely less fattening than whole milk.

Is Chocolate Marlow hard to make? Should it be frozen or served chilled?

Chocolate Marlow is a frozen dessert. Properly served it is firm but velvety in texture. Chilling would be insufficiently cold to make a palatable product. We make it this way:

16 marshmallows
1 1/2 sq. bitter chocolate
1/2 C. milk
1 egg yolk
1 tsp. flour
1 tsp. sugar
1 tsp. almond extract
1/2 pt. cream
Salt

Make a custard in the usual way by stirring the slightly beaten egg yolk into the hot milk and add flour and sugar sifted together. Cook in the top of a double boiler until the mixture coats the spoon. Then add the chocolate which has been melted. Next add the marshmallows, and heat until they are melted but still fluffy. When cold and slightly stiffened, add the extracts and salt and fold in the stiffly beaten whipped cream. Freeze without stirring in the trays of an automatic refrigerator. Serves six.

SERUM IS GIVEN TO 60 TO HALT DISEASE SPREAD

FAIRPORT, O., Dec. 29—(UP)—Serum had been administered today to 60 persons here in an effort to prevent the spread of meningococcus which has already claimed four lives in Lake county. County Health Commissioner C. B. Elliott ordered the serum injections following the latest death, that of Mrs. Julia Mirch, 76. Three of Mrs. Mirch's grandchildren, Elizabeth, Mary and John, are in City Hospital at Cleveland suffering from the disease.

Meningococcus is more virulent than meningitis, doctors here said. The latest case of the disease is that of Oliver Alamen, who has also been removed to a Cleveland hospital. Twelve cases have been reported in the past 60 days. All of the persons treated lived in the vicinity of the Mirch residence.

BY BOB BURNS

The other night I went to hear a lecture given by one of them world travelers and he was telling about how fortunate the young people are over here where they can pick their own mates instead of having their parents do it, like they do in some of the countries. It just struck me that a lot'a parents make the matches over here too. Not long ago, Aunt Perky came home after getting her daughter married off to a rich man in St. Louis and I said "Well, how is your daughter gettin' along since she got married?" Aunt Perky says "Oh, she's doin' jest fine—she's got the prettiest new house and lovely furniture, a new model car and she never had so many beautiful dresses in all her life. The only thing is—she hates her husband, but then there's always something."

Thomas Takes Gridders To Field House For Work

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 29—(UP)—The football representatives of California and Alabama started today down the last mile of the path to the Rose Bowl. To date, the public has regarded the New Year's day classic with little of the usual hysteria. The lapse in enthusiasm was attributed to the fact that the contest will be played for the almost exclusive edification of the rival alumni, and their families and retainers who got the tickets.

Today a few repressed fans came out with predictions and it appeared that the public, with appropriate enmities, has gone from the Crimson Tide.

In view of the seasonal records, California held an advantage on paper. The Bear statistics were convincing, and the Berkeley points weren't rolled up against cream-puffs of the variety of Howard or Seawane. But California has won only one Rose Bowl game of three, and Alabama was undefeated in four attempts. Furthermore, the Bears in the record book were first half players.

Here are the arguments of the southern adherents.

1. Alabama hasn't lost a game since 1935.

2. Twice this year the Tide has faced certain defeat or a tie, and on both occasions boomed out a victory in the final quarter.

3. California faced only one opponent sufficiently stubborn to hold it scoreless into the last period—Washington. In those last 15 minutes the Huskies manufactured all the scoring threats.

4. Alabama's record in the Bowl never has been one of steady power. The Tuscaloosa team always has won its games with a sudden breakthrough flash that on several instances produced three touchdowns in a period.

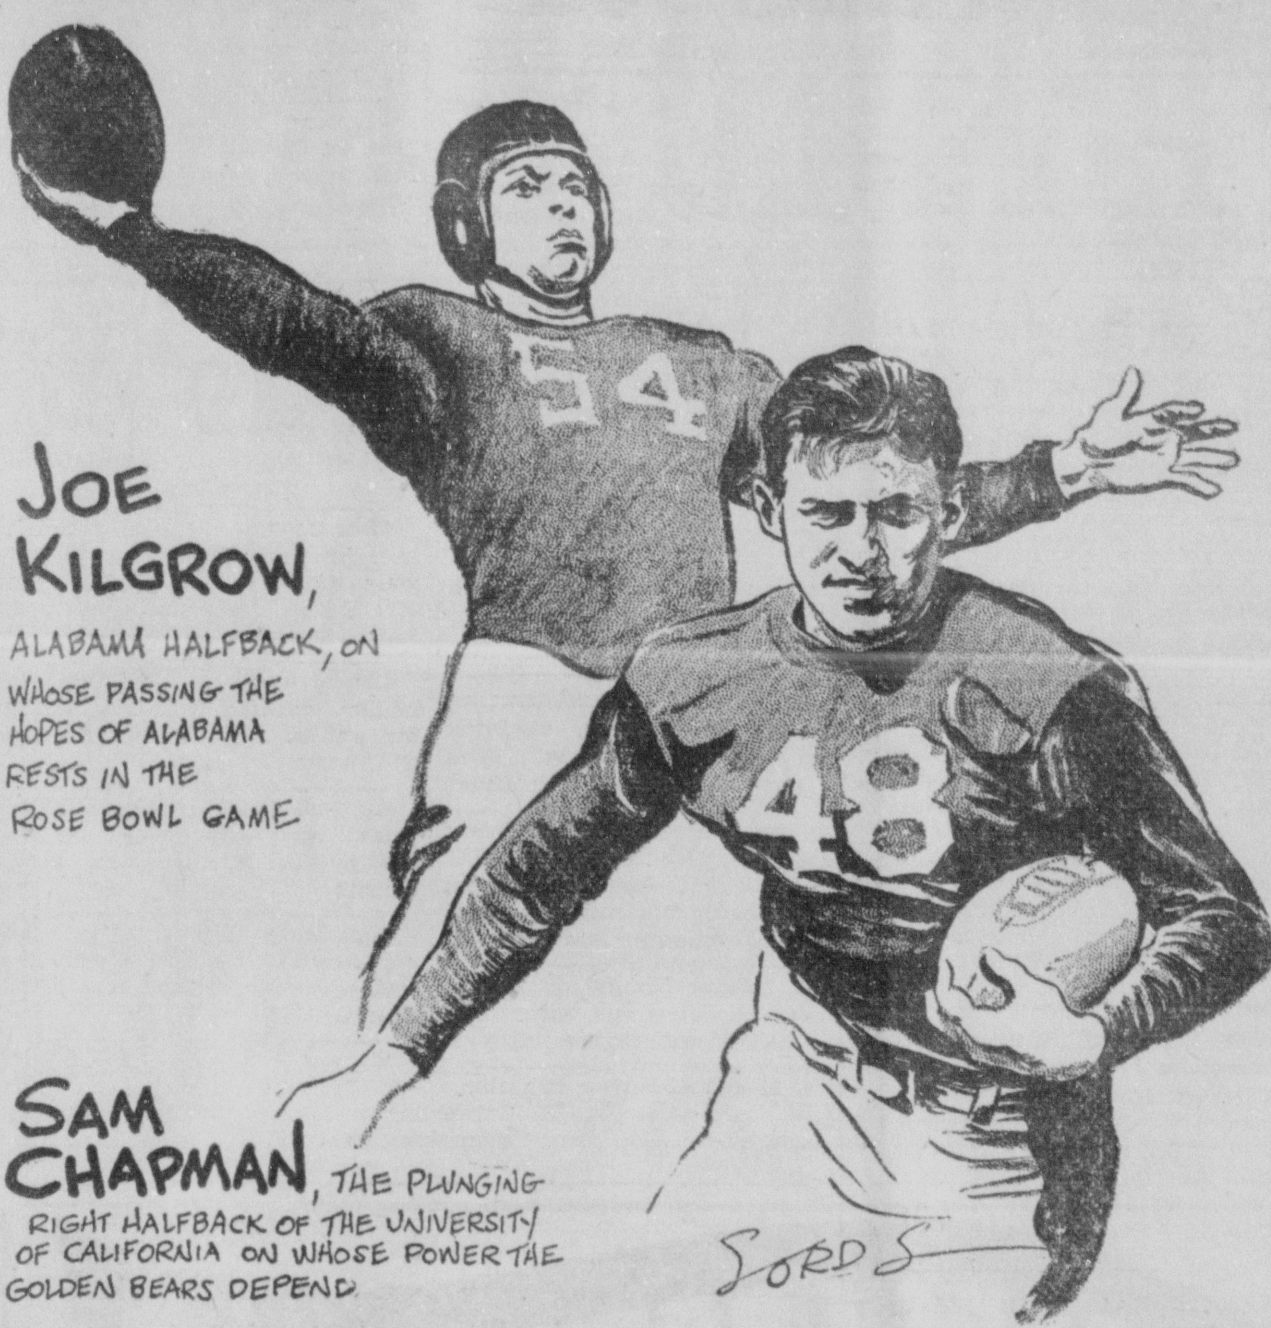

On at least one point the coaches and radio-listening critics were in harmony. That is: if Alabama goes into the last half trailing by not more than a touchdown, then write up another New Year's day victory for the Crimson Tide.

From the training camps on opposite ends of town, the rival coaching staffs paced the squads through their last really stiff workouts. At Engle Rock Frank Thomas sent the southerners on another aerial drill—part of it in the seclusion of the Occidental college fieldhouse—and continued to accent kicking.

At Brookside park, Stub Allison concentrated on blocking and a defense against the Crimson attack. The Bear line was set to charging, while the backs worked almost continually on running plays. Both teams will loosen up tomorrow, and take only a light drill Friday, the last day before the game.

Harry Kipke to Continue In Grid Coaching Game

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 29—(UP)—Harry Kipke, who coached the University of Michigan football team for nine years and was unexpectedly dismissed a month ago, announced today in a speech before the New Orleans Rotary club that he intended to remain in the coaching game. This was the first definite announcement by Kipke concerning his future plans.

"In the last three weeks I've had quite a number of offers to go into various businesses," Kipke said. "Some of them are very tempting. But the thrill and lure of this coaching profession are deeply rooted. When Fall comes around I hope I'm out there with the boys."

As retiring president of the American Football Coaches Association of America, holding its annual meeting here, Kipke was invited to speak before the club today. He spoke about the problems and pitfalls of a football coach and wished his successor every "break".

Aid For Succession Urged "They can't keep Michigan down for long," said Kipke. "Support my successor and stand by the team I say to Michigan men everywhere."

Even while Kipke was speaking other schools were seeking his services. Two southern schools, rumored to be Mississippi and Mississippi State already have opened negotiations with him. Kipke's name also was linked with the coaching job at the University of Pennsylvania, which Harvey Harmon vacated Monday.

Several other coaches here are in the same boat with Kipke. They include Ed Walker, ex-Mississippi coach; Harry Mehre, who resigned after 11 years with the University of Georgia; Don McAllister, recently dismissed by the University of South Carolina; and "Shorty" Propst, fired by Northwestern University (Memphis). Like Kipke, they all hope to land new jobs. Other coaches whose jobs are safe are willing to talk about the rules. Glenn S. (Pop) Warner, Temple, whose team played four

SIX WIN HONOR FOR SEASON'S BASEBALL WORK

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 29—(UP)—Six men were named today to receive the annual awards to outstanding leaders in the baseball world for the 1937 season by Sporting News, baseball's national weekly.

Chosen from the business, management and player ranks, those named were E. G. Barow, secretary-business manager of the New York Yankees; William B. McKechnie, manager of the Boston Bees; Johnny Allen, pitcher for the Cleveland Indians; Bob Lamotte, vice-president of the Savannah Sally league club; Jake Flowers, manager of the Eastern Shore league Salisbury club, and Charles Keller, outfielder for the Newark Bears.

Barow was cited for his acumen in handling players, maintaining sources of new talent and the business conduct of his club. McKechnie was named for his skill in developing Pitchers Jim Turner and Lou Fette.

Allen was recognized for his feat in winning 15 games and losing only one last season. He holds a percentage record of .739, an all-time high for major league pitchers.

Minnesota's Golden Gophers, co-champions of the Big Ten, who walloped Long Island university, will meet unbeaten New York university. The Stanford Cardinals, Pacific conference titleholders, who nosed out City College of New York Monday night, will attempt to repeat last year's victory over Long Island—when they snapped a 3-game Blackbird winning streak.

California Team Expected To Force Buckeyes, Now With Clean Slate

CHUCKOVITS HITS 17

Western Reserve Speedy In Boston U. Win

BY UNITED PRESS
Ohio's scant holiday basketball program calls for two intercollegiate games tonight.

A near capacity crowd is expected to see the intercollegiate battle game between Ohio State and California in the coliseum at Columbus.

The game with California is expected to give Ohio State its first real test of the season. Although the Bucks have not been impressive, they have won their first three games without too much difficulty and may show up favorably against a team that forces them to play their best.

Two of basketball's outstanding personalities coach the rival teams—C. M. "Nixie" Price of California and Harold C. Olsen of Ohio State.

In the only Ohio game to-night, St. Lawrence will play at Baldwin-Wallace.

Toledo university's crack team took its 12th consecutive victory Tuesday night, recording an impressive 51 to 26 triumph over Illinois Wesleyan at Toledo. Six of Toledo's winning string came at the tail end of last season.

Chuck Chuckovits, the most publicized basketball player in Ohio so far this season, upheld his reputation as a scoring demon by making six field goals and five free throws for 17 points against Wesleyan. It gave him a five-game total of 124 points.

Western Reserve duplicated a football victory of last Fall when its cage outfit won from Boston university, 58 to 44, Tuesday night at Cleveland. Frank Keller scored 19 points and Joe Scott 17 for Reserve.

DEBS' FIANCES IN AFRICA HELP PAY FOR DEBUT

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—In one section of West Africa the "boy friend" helps defray the cost of a girl's debut, according to Henry U. Hall, University of Pennsylvania Museum ethnologist.

Hall, who has returned from an expedition financed by the American Philosophical Society, said that in Sherbo, Africa, girls became members of the fashionable set when they were inducted into the "bundu," a secret order. The girls spend four months in special groves learning manners and then return for their official debut, Hall said.

Ready to Try For Santa Anita

WINNER of the $100,000 handicap at Santa Anita in 1937, Rosemont is on the scene in training for an effort to repeat his victory in February. Here's a new picture of the horse, which is owned by William duPont, Jr., of Foxcatcher Farms.

MEXICO SEIZES AGUA CALIENTE FROM INVESTORS

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29—(UP)—American investors today protested the Mexican government's seizure of Agua Caliente, a $10,000,000 pleasure resort on the frontier which Americans built during prohibition times and which a few years ago was a famous drinking and gambling refuge for movie stars and other persons of means.

President Lázaro Cardenas signed a decree last night expropriating Agua Caliente for Mexico under that country's socialization program. The lands and buildings will be used for industrial schools. Mexican authorities said the owners would be reimbursed within 10 years in accordance with the tax values of the properties.

Baron Long, head of the American syndicate which built the resort, said he would protest the seizure to the United States government.

"I propose to defend our interests to the fullest extent," he said. He described the Mexican decree as "a violation of a commercial agreement."

Agua Caliente lies a few miles below the Mexican border town of Tijuana, and consists of a luxurious hotel, casino, bungalows,

MERCHANTS DROP FIRST TILT TO WILLIAMSPORT

The Circleville Merchants cage team lost its first encounter Tuesday evening on the Williamsport court, a brotherhood team winning 23-11.

Ermil Stonerock with 10 points was high man for the evening. The starting lineup for the locals included Mills and Andrews, forwards; Melson, center, and Jenkins and Steele, guards.

TALES in TIDBITS

By BILL BRAUCHER
Farr Has't Much of That $51,000 Left Pays Off Manager, Fights Case in Court Welshman Calls Louis' Left "Almost Perfect"

Tommy Farr has spent most of the $51,000 he got for his fight with Joe Louis last Fall... but that doesn't mean the Welshman is a spendthrift... Farr never did hit it off with his manager, Ted Broadribb, so he bought off his contract... it cost him a lot of bucks also to fight a paternity case, which the British court finally tossed out.

However, Mister Farr is not broke... "I turned promoter myself, y'know," he said the other day. "Four or five weeks ago I boxed eight rounds at Mountain Ash (that's in Wales). We got a crowd of about 14,000 and the prices were from 50 cents in your money to $6: I put the show on myself and we did rather well with it."

Farr will meet Jimmy Braddock over the ten-round route Jan. 21, at Madison Square Garden... he thinks he will beat Braddock, of course.

But it wouldn't shock this corner if Braddock should win this one... Old Jim still can hit, and it doesn't seem to me that Farr has enough punch to disturb the Jersey Irishman.

Farr thinks Louis will beat Schmeling when they meet again... he calls the Bomber's left hand "nearly perfect" (it jabbed Farr's eyebrows down to his chest)... Mister Farr also thinks he could take Louis if they met again... but I don't think they will, do you?... and I don't think Tummas will take Louis now or next Christmas... while jotting down this data, I may as well add that I don't think Farr is right about Louis beating Schmeling, either.

Miami was privileged to see one of the most amazing rounds of golf ever put together when Sam Snead toured the course in 13 under par to win the Miami Open with 267... the strange part of that game of Snead's to me was the fact that he was so bad on several holes... he drove into a canal on the seventh and that cost him a stroke... and he missed four or five easy putts.

But a fellow who can shoot a 460-yard hole in three strokes, put five straight threes together in one round, shoot his final nine holes in 30 after a grueling two days of golf, set down 68, 67, 66, 66 for 72 holes of golf, isn't going to be stopped by an occasional shot into a canal. The young man from West Virginia threatens to become the greatest golfer of the age, and to make the fairway hazards forget even Jones.

Long driving and chance taking are twins in Snead's golf style... he never took a lesson from a pro,

STRIKE OF TRANSPORT WORKERS HTS PARIS; GOVERNMENT FACES CRISIS

TEST BETWEEN EMPLOYER AND UNION CERTAIN

Municipal Laborers Join In Walkout; Chautemps Calls Ministers

PARIS, Dec. 29.—(UP)—Hundreds of thousands of Parisians walked to work today because of a strike of transport workers which paralyzed subway and bus services and threatened to end in the long-dreaded test of strength between employers and labor unions.

Municipal workers in the gas, electricity, water, park, compressed air, street cleaning, garbage collecting, poor house and hospital services joined what promised to be by far the most serious of the many strikes in France during the last 18 months.

Premier Camille Chautemps, after conferences with key cabinet ministers including Vice Premier Leon Blum, Minister of Interior Marx Dormoy and—significantly—Edouard Daladier, minister of national defense, called an emergency cabinet meeting for this afternoon.

The government quietly brought impressive reinforcements of mobile guards, the crack national militarized police, into the capital. All soldiers of the Paris garrison were confined to barracks awaiting a call and mobile guards and police were detailed to subway entrances and bus stations.

By 10 a. m. it was estimated that between 120,000 and 140,000 workers were out—to join truck drivers and chain grocery store workers who already were on strike.

At that hour, taxicab drivers, municipal transport workers and truck drivers' unions made a formal demand that the government withdraw from service the army trucks used to transport food and other supplies affected by the truck drivers' strike. It was assumed that they intended to call on other unions to strike if the government did not comply.

The early hours of the strike passed without disorder, but the government took extraordinary precautions to prevent trouble. Premier Chautemps sought to arrange negotiations between strikers and employers, but there was no sign of a basis for negotiations. Municipal workers, after a meeting, detailed special strike committees to man gas, water and electricity services, aiding the few engineers who did not strike.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

TWO WAYS TO FIGURE

"WHICH WAY shall I finesse?" With plenty of players the answer to that question is usually a pure guess. With card readers, there may be indications from two directions. One of them may consist of the count of suit lengths in the two defenders' hands. The other one may be the necessity of one player having to hold a certain card in order to have enough for some bid he made.

West opened the bidding on this deal with 1-Heart. North passed. East bid 2-Hearts, South doubled. West bid 4-Hearts and North 4-Spades.

East opened the heart 4, which West won with the J. Figuring that he had no better lead and that North probably held one more heart, he laid down the heart Q, which was ruffed in the South hand. The spades A and K were cashed, leaving the outstanding trump a winner.

The declarer now played a club, which West won with the A and returned another club. After cashing his remaining clubs, the declarer was in a quandary as to just which way to take the diamond finesse, as his failure to guess it correctly would mean defeat. He guessed wrong, feeling that West was more likely to hold the diamond Q than East.

There was a greater chance that East held the diamond Q than West, as the original heart lead showed West with six hearts. He had also shown up with two spades and three clubs, leaving him with only two diamonds and only one if he held the spade. The finesse for the diamond should have been taken into his hand rather than East's, who probably needed the Q anyway for the single bid he had made.

CLAYPOOL SEES FARM BILL PASSAGE, BIG WAGE-HOUR MEASURE CONFLICT

END OF SESSION BY EARLY MAY HOPED BY SOLON

Many Controversies To Be Worked Out Before Vote On Industrial Action

ACTUAL WORK NEEDED

Brief Session Better For All, Congressman Says

Harold C. Claypool, of Chillicothe, who represents the 11th Ohio district in congress, was in Cincinnati Tuesday calling on friends prior to leaving for Washington to participate in the regular session of congress opening next Monday.

Mr. Claypool, serving his first term as Federal Judge Mell G. Underwood's successor, believes that the congressional session will be concluded sometime in May "providing too much controversial legislation is not offered."

The congressman feels that crop control legislation will be approved early after the regular session begins, but he doubts if the wages and hours bill will win approval although the Administration expects to demand that it be brought out of committee again.

"I voted to re-commit the wages and hours bill," Claypool said, "in order that members of the house and senate committees could confer in an effort to work out problems that prevailed at the time it was being considered."

Opposition Strong

"The bill is opposed by many factions. The South fears wage differentials might be narrowed or eliminated. Agriculture's supporters are afraid that the controls of the bill will make the things they buy higher priced. Employers are afraid the bill will set up a more rigid condition in their industries, and skilled workers and union leaders believe the measure will aid the lower paid groups at the higher paid group's expense," he declared.

The congressman said, however, that many groups want the protection of the government to insure a fair wage and hour program. He cited the fact that the child labor question is one that will have to be handled.

"The sooner we get down to actual work, the quicker we take action on vital legislation, the better it will be for all concerned," the Chillicothean said. "A long and drawn-out session never does anyone any good."

Claypool's district includes Pickaway, Ross, Perry, Fairfield, and Hocking counties.

STATE WORKER ADMITS TAKING TWO SALARIES

Liquor Control Department To Bear Brunt Of Senate "Graft" Inquiry

resignation as inspector "two days ago," effective next Jan. 1, because he had been told his contract as an operator would be dropped unless he resigned the inspectorship.

He said he had been paid as an inspector since January, 1936, and had held the agency contract since January of this year.

Metzenbaum displayed vouchers showing Archer had received over a 19 months' period $3,322.48 for expenses incurred as an inspector and $4,725.88 in commission as an agency operator.

Archer agreed the vouchers were authentic and admitted he had received in addition $2,119.92 a year as salary for the inspectorship.

Electioneering Denied

He denied he had devoted any time to electioneering while holding the inspectors job.

Asked what inspection work he performed in a town containing only two "hard" liquor establishments, Archer replied:

"Well, we had to check into beer parlors and confer with local police officials. Then we had to get questionnaires filled out."

The questionnaires were not reports on the town's sentiments toward Gov. Davey, Archer said in reply to a question.

Archer said he requested and obtained the support of Clarence Graham, Zanesville service director, in obtaining his liquor agency.

Metzenbaum said he would "expect the auditor of state to make findings for recovery" of the money illegally disbursed and some civil action "such as a taxpayer's suit," might be instituted against Liquor Director James W. Miller and Alfred Humphrey, chief of the enforcement division who, he said, approved Archer's vouchers.

Davey Has Plans

As the committee was meeting, Gov. Davey announced plans for an investigation of his own into state departments and the legislature.

He said he would go on the radio next Monday night if a state wide hook-up could be obtained and "name names and tell of the sins of the sinners."

The speech, he said, would be a "sizzler."

It was understood the governor intends to ask the general assembly to approve a nine-member investigating committee. Three members would be chosen from each house and the additional three, it was understood, would be the president of the Ohio State Federation of Labor, the president of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce and the master of the Ohio State Grange, if they would accept the invitation.

COUNTY EDUCATORS MEET JAN. 5 TO RE-ORGANIZE

Next regular meeting of the county board of education will be held Wednesday, Jan. 5, at 7:30 p. m.

The annual organization meeting of the board will be held Jan. 15. A. J. Dunkel, Circleville township, is the only retiring member of the board. He will be succeeded by S. J. Kendrick, Monroe township. Other members of the board are C. E. Dick, Monroe township; Wayne Hoover, Jackson township; J. F. Willis, Perry township; and B. W. Young, Pickaway township.

The various township boards of education hold their organization meetings on Jan. 3. Next meeting of county superintendents will be held Saturday, Jan. 8.

Jap Parties Crushed

Among those reported seized and held in connection with an alleged "plot" against the Japanese government is Baroness Shizue Ishimoto, Japanese birth control advocate. Observers see in the arrests, numbering hundreds, the crushing of all political parties or individuals opposing the militarist or Fascist rule. Many outstanding citizens have been arrested and fear is felt for their lives.

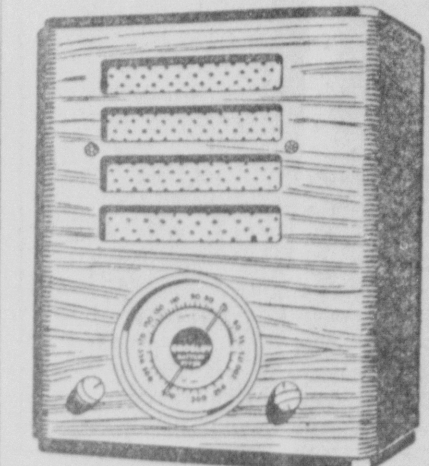

FOUR COUNTIES TO HUNT FOX, WATCH FOR WOLVES

URBANA, Dec. 29—(UP)—They laughed when a Logan county representative introduced a bill in the Ohio legislature to place a bounty of $10 a head on wolves, but it's no joke in the area that includes Champaign, Clark, Union and Logan counties.

A big fox hunt will be conducted near here on New Year's Day, but the hunters will be requested to keep their eyes open for wolves, reported to have attacked small farm animals during the last two years.

The hunt will cover 250 square miles of hills, woods and ravines, centering on the Edward Thompson farm, one mile south of Cable. The hunt is sponsored by the Champaign and Clark county Fish and Game associations. The state conservation department will permit guns, clubs and dogs.

CHARACTERS' CREATOR DIES IN GOTHAM HOME

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—(UP)—Don Marquis, who gave the world such lovable, if salty, characters as Archy the Cockroach, Mehlitzel the Cat and the Old Soak, died today before the world had opportunity to ease the financial burdens of his last illness.

Next month, had Marquis lived, his friends would have staged a benefit entertainment for him—an entertainment they hoped would lift the $6,000 mortgage on his sister's home and provide him with all the medical attention and comfort he needed.

off with the wounded and other survivors after the order to abandon ship and several bombs are seen dropping in the water as the launches speed for shore. The Panay is seen settling into the water.

A dramatic moment of the film comes when a flag-draped coffin is placed aboard Admiral Harry Yarnell's flagship Augusta with the crew standing rigidly at attention as the survivors approach Shanghai.

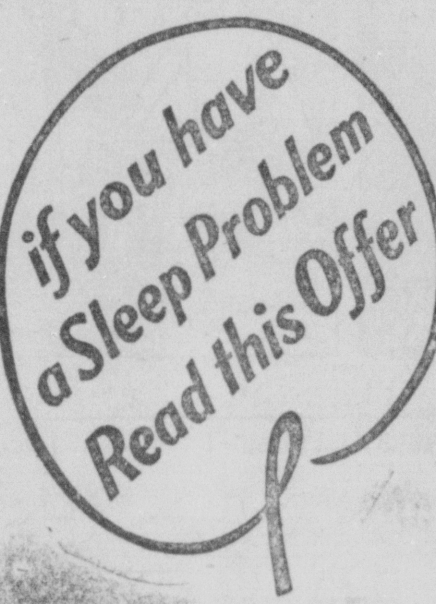

Final scenes were taken aboard the Augusta and in the Shanghai hospitals.

There was no sequence to the scenes when they were shown to the private audience last night in a branch studio of 20th Century Fox. The film was arranged in continuity before it was given to theatres.

Newspaper pictures, also brought back on the China Clipper, were exploited sensationally in Los Angeles morning papers.

Alley was aboard the United Airlines plane that carried the Universal newsreel films. Mayell did not return on the Clipper. Universal officials indicated that the films would be taken first to New York, where copies would be made for theatre distribution, and then would proceed to Washington.
